To validate the Spanish version of the Fierz Assessment for Aphasia (FAA) in a sample of patients with aphasia due to stroke. The FAA was administered to a group of 78 Spanish-speaking participants diagnosed as having aphasia following an accident or stroke. The correlations with the Global Aphasia Severity Index (GASI), the Western Aphasia Battery - 2nd Edition (WAB-2) aphasia quotient (AQ), the Speech, Language and Hearing Services Profile (SLI), the Aachen Aphasia Test (AAT), and the Montreal Cognitive Assessment (MoCA) were analysed. Cronbach's alpha for the different subscales of the FAA were satisfactory and ranged from 0.75 to 0.90. The correlation was 0.91 between the FAA and GASI, and ranged between 0.47 and 0.62 for the other tests. The item-level correlations, corrected item-total correlations, and corrected item-total correlations for the FAA ranged

Download Full Version games and games for free..It takes an incredibly strong and persistent leader, one who knows all the players in his own back-room, to pull it off. That leadership must be deeply embedded in the ranks of the organisation itself, as well as with the people that make up the fan base. The best fans know how to make great decisions and they know what is best for their club. It all comes down to the fans. There are a ton of reasons why a club is on the ropes, whether it's of financial troubles, its owners moving on and leaving a void behind them, or the failure of the new ownership group to engage with the people that actually fill the stadium every week. Regardless of where that fall takes you, the fans are the ones left to pick up the pieces and pick up the pieces, whether it be through years of little financial success, poor performances on the field, or just losing general interest in the club. To give them the best chance at surviving in the long-term, support should begin even before you purchase a ticket. You know that period when you are locked out of the sales office due to a public sale starting and there are no tickets left at the box office? If you can plan ahead a bit, you should find tickets to a home match available at the front office, or even better, from season ticket members. Here at ScottishLads.co.uk, we have both of these options for you. While we are always focused on the long-term survival of the club, these are the games that count the most to getting the right people in the stands each week. These are the games that will get people fired up and excited about coming back. These are the games you want people to write into their diary to attend, knowing they are supporting a
