Autodesk Autocad 2013 serial numberThe collapse of the fourth official in the Golden State Warriors' thrilling Game 5 triumph in the Western Conference finals almost turned into disaster for Kevin Durant and Klay Thompson.

While the go-ahead, game-winning three-pointer by Durant was going through to the basket, the official ruled Thompson had stepped out of bounds with 6.8 seconds remaining in the game. Thompson watched the ball go through the hoop and make a 2-pointer as the ball came out of the basket with a 3.5 seconds left on the clock.

Thompson would later describe that play as a gift from God. "Man, that 3-point shot that he made at the end is a gift from God," Thompson said after Game 5. "Without that, we weren't in the conversation in that game."

According to the NBA's officiating rules, "Every team shall be permitted to substitute a third player of any position into the game at any time during the game on the basis of medical or ball/stick issues or in the event that an injury occurs to a player of a non-shooting position." Thompson was sitting at the scorer's table when his teammate made the game-winning shot,
