* **Raster images:** Images are stored as arrays of picture elements, called pixels, and are further broken down into red, green, and blue color planes. In Photoshop, these components work independently to form individual layers, and you can place them on top of one another for a composite. A virtual stack of layers is called a `_composite_`, and you can create many different types of composites.

Ask HN: What skills do you need to become a high-frequency trader? - throwaway6437 Yes, there are tons of articles and youtube videos on high-frequency trading, but I'm skeptical of the BS they put out because I don't understand how these systems operate at that level. Some can tell me how to break down an ETF and get the best leverage off of it, but I really want to know what they do physically to move the market. What are the main steps they take? ===== zuzun The key words for HFT are continuous fast execution. In my understanding of HFT they basically have a large data center where high throughput computing is used to execute trades in seconds. I guess you can call it "faster than light".

There is also a couple of software startups called Walk-in that seems to deliver on the same promise of fast execution. I'm not a HFT expert, but a friend who works at one of those companies told me that any trade on their platforms that can be done by a typical broker only takes a couple of seconds - if this is true, it would be a dream for many people. ~~~ throwaway6437 Yeah, I am not trying to become a HFT, just curious how they work. Thanks ----- simonblack If you want to know how HFT works, go and watch the videos and read the articles on [ Peterson came into this one having only scored five goals in his last 79 appearances for the Rams. straight seasons with at least 1,400 rushing yards and 13 touchdowns. "I don't think he can do that again. I don't think he can keep pushing the goal post back," he said. "And the question is what is he going to do for a pay raise? You have to pay Adrian Peterson more than that to do it again. Of course, it takes a third of your running game away. You're going to pay part of your running game away. That's just the way it is." "If it wasn't for the Calvin Johnson experiment in Detroit

So I decided to dig into the first month of the 2018 MLB season and weigh in on which team(s) are the most and least likely to make the playoffs. The heatmap below is based on ownership percentages (it is not adjusted to reflect league-wide fan interest). The teams you are looking at are in the Eastern and Western Conferences, as well as the AL West and NL West. This also means you are looking at the top 64 teams in the league (yes, just 64 teams). Greetings fellow baseball junkies, The MLB season begins this week, and it's time to look at who will be the most and least likely to make the playoffs. To figure out which teams are most likely, I'm using the AL+NL West Conference and the AL+NL East Conference, both with 4 teams each. On a side note, I originally made this post after watching the Rays play in the 2017 World Series, then saw them sweep the Yankees in the 2018 ALCS, but I decided to wait until the AL West (Panthers) actually played a game before diving in. Now that we're getting to the start of the 2018 regular season, I wanted to see if the trend from 2017 would carry over. So, here is the heatmap showing the most and least likely teams to make the playoffs. The size of the circle shows the likelihood of them being in the postseason. Red represents teams with a chance to make the playoffs, and blue indicates teams that are unlikely to make the playoffs. Will Toronto be a more likely World Series champion, or will they be a year older and better at least partially because of the year they spent kicking the Rockies while they were down? The answer to that question will be decided in the coming months. Stay tuned. The most likely team to make the playoffs is the Houston Astros. Part of that is because of the amount of money they spent this past offseason. Part of that is because there were no truly dominant teams in the AL West. Part of that is because there are four teams with winning percentages below .500 in the AL West. This is a situation where the Astros are a top 5 in pitching, and I have them as being most likely to make the playoffs. Last season, the Astros were probably the best team in baseball. They finished first in the AL West, and they won 96 games. The eight best teams in baseball probably all made the playoffs last season
