The field of the disclosure relates generally to housings for receivers and, more specifically, to a housing for an antennae assembly of a vehicle. Vehicle antennae, such as horn antennas and external antennas, may be mounted to a vehicle in a variety of ways. Often times, exterior antennae may be mounted to the vehicle via an exterior antenna mount. One type of exterior antenna mount is a yoke mount. A yoke mount, or a "Y" mount, is generally mounted to the vehicle via a bolt that is threaded into a mounting location on a vehicle frame, roof, or other mounting location. When used as an exterior antenna mount, a Y mount typically has opposing arms that can extend outwardly and downwardly to form a U-shaped assembly. A yoke mount is often used for mounting antennae that is used by the driver of the vehicle. For example, a radio antenna used by the driver may be mounted to a yoke mount and may extend outwardly and downwardly from the exterior of the vehicle. Many modern vehicles use an electronic control unit (ECU) to control a number of different vehicle systems. Often times, an ECU is located in a central area of a vehicle. Thus, it may be desirable to mount antennae exterior of the vehicle in areas that are not convenient for ECU placement. For example, a vehicle may include a co-pilot system that is used to control various vehicle functions. A co-pilot system may include an antenna that is located on a dashboard of Categorizing the language of grief and bereavement. This article aims to categorize the language of grief and bereavement. This study aimed to explore (a) the nature of language in grief and bereavement, (b) the language of the hospice carer and patient, (c) the relationship between the language of bereaved relatives and the hospice carer, and (d) the relationship between the language of hospice carers and the patients who died within the hospice. A total of 73 bereaved relatives of patients who died within the hospice were recruited via community bereavement groups and completed the Grief Reaction Inventory. Interviews with bereaved patients and hospice carers regarding the patient's death were also completed. These data were analysed qualitatively using Giorgi's (Giorgi, 1989) method. Grief, bereavement, and the process of dying were reflected by expressions of sad, bereaved, bereavement, and dying. Grief could be reflected by terms such as sad, bereaved, and bereavement; bereaved could be reflected by terms such as mourn, pain, and mourning; dying could be reflected by terms such as reach the end, death, and end. A theory of grief was created

What's new in My Big Sister:

"The most beautiful people we have known are those who have known defeat, known suffering, known struggle, known loss and have found their way out of the depths." - Elisabeth Kübler-Ross
"It is the prerogative of better men than I to make mistakes, but it is also the right of the good to condemn what is evil." - John Adams
"Whoever serves becomes responsible for what is served." - Paul Bert "Science is organized skepticism." - David Hume "The easier a puzzle is, the easier it is to solve. The harder it is, the more you value the person who solved it, of course. It's that very hubris. It's worth celebrating!" - Arthur C. Clarke "The best way to predict the future is to create it." - Johann Wolfgang von Goethe "We achieve our personal development with pain, often extraordinary pain; and extraordinary personal development, brings extraordinary health. Pain is the body's way of telling us to do more things it is not used to do, and more things it does not want us to do." - Brian Armstrong "Everything suffers shipwreck in the mind before the body."- Marcus Aurelius "It is human to have because, but human to lose, too, for this is also the human Good, the human Right; always some one has and always someone may have his portion."- Marcus Aurelius "No faith in the gods but I have faith in man."- Pericles "I've spent most of my life trying to become an old lady before it is too late. I have failed miserably."- Jenna Jameson "The main thing is not only to win; but to win in such a way that you have honor for having fought the good fight, you lived the good life, you kept honor and faith."- Robert E. Lee "Vanity has not left the world. But men have."- Pablo Picasso "It is impossible to smile properly without pleasure and impossible to be happy without hope."- Alrick Morton "If you are seeking knowledge of a higher nature, I tell you that it will come to you only when you least expect it."- Auric E. Bata Jr. "Now I find the body so fragile and so impossible for long journeys
