Aim of this study was the determination of lymphocyte synthesis of pro- and anti-inflammatory cytokines in patients with myocardial infarction (MI) in order to contribute to the pathomechanism of such and other inflammatory diseases. We included 36 patients with MI (group I), 43 patients with unstable angina pectoris (group II), and 39 healthy subjects in this study. We determined by enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) the interleukin-1 beta (IL-1 beta) and interleukin-10 (IL-10) synthesis by peripheral blood mononuclear cells (PBMCs) in response to phytohemagglutinin (PHA) stimulation. IL-1 beta synthesis was significantly increased in PBMCs of group I (2.72 +/- 0.33 pg/ml) and group II (2.99 +/- 0.54 pg/ml) in comparison with controls (1.05 +/- 0.32 pg/ml). IL-10 synthesis showed no significant difference between the 3 groups. There was a significant correlation between the magnitude of lymphocyte production of IL-1 beta and the infarct size. IL-1 beta synthesis by lymphocytes could be an indicator for the severity of inflammatory processes of ischaemic heart disease (IHD).U.S. Pat. No. 4,514,309 issued to Gabriel G.
